Taken on 29 September 1939 for National Registration, this is the nearest thing to a 1939 census. It records an exact date of birth, which helps separate people of the same name. The sheet follows the record series RG 101. Closed records: entries for people born less than 100 years ago, and not known to have died, are blanked out online. Write "closed" in the name column and try again later. Later changes of name (often a married name) were added over the years, so note them in the last column. Crossed-out entries marked "See page..." are continuation entries and usually add nothing. Transcribe exactly what is written, with your own additions in [square brackets] and unclear words as [?].
